

President of DAS Scientific Committee

The DAS Scientific Committee is headed by a President. He is the representative of the DA Society and remains in charge for one year. The President is elected during the annual autumn meeting, to be held during the DA Symposium.

Nomination procedure:

1. The presidency is limited to one year and should be passed to each member country on rotation basis.
2. The President has to be nominated from the members of the DA Scientific Committee.
3. The representatives of the country, which is in charge of the organisation of the succeeding DA Symposium have the right to propose a candidate for the President.
4. The President is elected by the DA Scientific Committee. He/she will be in charge for the year following the organisation of his/her DA Symposium.
5. The handing-over of the presidency takes place during the closing ceremony of or immediately after a DA Symposium.

Remark:

This procedure of holding the presidency in the year after having organised the annual DA Symposium ensures that (i) the President is familiar with the current situation (problems) of DAS, and (ii) the President is not overloaded by representing DAS and by the organisational work concerning the DA Symposium.
